These three, beautiful, business ladies decided to join forces and put together something that we all can enjoy. Who are these ladies?

Latasha Lee: Experience By Yan

Latasha is a brilliant young lady that has thrown several successful events and decided to hold her own luxury experience, The Botanical Garden Extravaganza. Her vision and brilliance attracted the attention of Tokey's Treats, KeKe, and Kine Hearts Media. We decided to join forces and make something grand.

Takia Mitchell: Tokey's Treats

Takia Mitchell owner of Tokey's Treats LLC. strives to provide education in communities where little to no education is being disseminated in the changing marijuana industry and laws. This has included teaching small Cannabis 101 classes at the Braddock Carnegie Library and Marijuana Education center in Pittsburgh, PA, hosting a variety of events with a focus on cannabis education, and selling her delicious hemp-infused edibles.

Featured Model: KeKe Sewbe:

Kel-Lisa, also known as Keke. A Philadelphia native and Duquesne graduate and business owner of a multi-purpose event space right in Homestead called Imperial Levels. Following her lifelong dream to model, admiring Tyra Banks and Naomi Campbell. She was selected to model in Pittsburgh fashion week 2021 and we look forward to seeing her step the runway at the Botanical Garden Extravaganza.

Carol Black: Kine Hearts Media

Ms. Black has seen the need for advocacy in yet another arena. She decided to use her resources and start and produce the first cannabis, a patient-focused magazine called Kine Hearts Magazine, which grew into Kine Hearts Media, which includes our partnership with the 4th Disciple of Wu-Tang and many more. KHM was formed to bring all aspects of therapeutic, holistic, and cannabis-based services and information into one publication. The goal is to be a reference guide to cannabis patients as well as those on the front lines of cannabis literacy.
