

Zero-Ohm Systems Names AVL Media Group for North America

AVL To Distribute Company's Pro Audio Products

Montreal, Quebec Mar 12, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - Zero-Ohm Systems has named AVL Media Group as its exclusive distributor for North America. AVL will distribute the company's Disrupter Series and Renegade Series of products which are designed to allow multiple loudspeakers to be connected in parallel without the need for external 70-volt transformers. The plug-and-play design is simple to interface into large systems and offers substantial cost savings to the installer and customer. The sonic benefits of full-range loudspeakers are fully realized with the Zero-Ohm system in place.

George Dracopoulos, Co-Founder and President of Zero-Ohm Systems state, “We are delighted that AVL Media Group is our new North American Pro/AV distributor. The company has a long and successful track record serving the audio, lighting, and recording industries and represents state-of-the-art brands for the Arena, Club, Theater, Contractor, and Touring markets. They will promote, educate, and inform integrators, consultants, dealers, and installers about our uniquely disruptive Zero-Ohm passive devices. Together we will deliver superior solutions that solve a standard problem with a value-added approach.”

Several large installations have been outfitted with Zero-Ohm systems including The National Stadium in Denmark and Arena of Nimes in southern France. Andrew Hope, Managing Director, AVL Media Group, commented, “We are excited to distribute this impressive technology to the North American market. Our company is built on a simple foundation: delivering value to our clients and ensuring customer satisfaction. Zero-Ohm Systems accentuates that mission and enables us to provide full-range sound through parallel connections on a variety of small, medium, and large-scale installations where that was previously not possible.”
