New York City, New York Apr 21, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - A prominent pediatrician, Dr. Iyama-Kurtycz is an associate Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine &

Public Health.

Recognized as an international leader in education, research, and service, the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine & Public Health continues to evolve to meet changing health care needs. From creating academic programs targeting health professional shortage areas to becoming the nation's first school to integrate medicine and public health, it consistently strives to be at the forefront of health care innovation through service, science, scholarship, and social responsibility.

Throughout her academic career, Dr. Iyama-Kurtycz earned her medical degree from the University of Michigan Medical School in 1976, and completed two consecutive residencies in pediatrics at the University of Kansas and the University of Wisconsin in 1979-1980, respectively.

As a testament to her continued education, the doctor is board-certified in pediatrics by the American Board of Pediatrics (ABP). The mission of the ABP is to advance child health by certifying pediatricians who meet standards of excellence and are committed to continuous learning and improvement.

Pediatrics is the branch of medicine that involves the medical care of infants, children, and adolescents. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends individuals be under pediatric care up to the age of 21. Pediatricians provide medical care to people ranging in age from newborns to young adults. They are trained to examine, diagnose, and treat children with a wide variety of injuries and illnesses through all of their developmental stages, as they grow and mature.

An authority in her field, Dr. Iyama-Kurtycz has been the recipient of the Castle Connolly Regional Top Doctor Award in 2014.
