

Clyde Publisher's and Miss Tennessee Titleholders Exude Poise and Service at Shelby Farms This Past Thursday

The stars aligned this past National Look Up At The Stars Day as more than 100 families gathered with Clyde Publisher's in support of STEM and project based learning.

Memphis, Tennessee Apr 22, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - With severe thundershowers, the Tuesday and Wednesday in Memphis, TN before Clyde Publisher's annual Family Star Gazing event, President, author, and actress Elizabeth Clyde of Clyde Publisher's was determined to believe that the stars would align for her nonprofit's event to take place at one of the most beautiful parks in the state of Tennessee, and arguably the United States, Shelby Farms.

Landing at the Memphis International Airport at 3:43 PM from Panama City Beach she added, "My dear husband forgot my dress and so I was fortunate enough to find a cute pink Black Clover Pro Golf hat that said, "Live Lucky" and skirt set inside the Houston International Airport. I feel really lucky to have been planning this event since October and to get families engaged in STEM. My overall motive is to bring families together with all of the events that we do and always on a beautiful day to enjoy great food and to support the next generation of scientists, engineers, and mathematicians. When I checked last night there were more than 100 families registered so we are eager to get there and greet all guests for this family stargazing event!”

Over 200 families ended up gathering to enjoy food from food trucks: Mexico in Memphis, Voodoo Cafe, Lazeez Shwarma, Top Dawgz, and Mathnasium of Wolfchase and Oak Court under the clear blue sky of Shelby Farms.

Mrs. Albert of Grahamwood Elementary School was awarded the Clyde Publisher’s STEM Teacher of 2022 award. She will be receiving two all-access passes to the Cosmosphere Museum provided by the museum located in Hutchinson, Kansas along with a gas card and lodging provided by Clyde Publisher to show appreciation for her efforts in Science. Mrs. Albert has been a Science teacher for 39 years and this was her first award to acknowledge her efforts.

Clyde publishers is a nonprofit based out of Atlanta, GA with a mission to inspire the next generation of scientists, engineers, and mathematicians through STEM project-based learning.

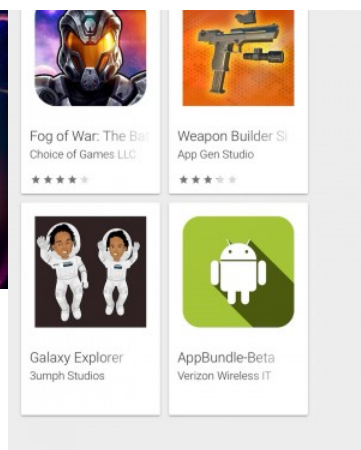

The Clyde Publisher’s committee consists of a librarian, attorney, principal, retired Air Force veteran, certified Montessori educator, and two Galaxy exploring brothers.

Miss Tennessee titleholders: Hawa Ceesay, Lilly Donaldson, Diana Moseley, and Georgia Sink exuded grace and service as they arrived in crown and sash eager to greet the families that attended the stargazing event. The Miss Tennessee titleholders also graced the stage with the President of Clyde Publisher’s, Elizabeth, while sharing their platforms ranging from heart disease awareness, anti-bullying, arts for all, and STEM.

In addition, young ladies were signing up to find out more about the Miss Tennessee Scholarship Pageant event which will be taking place this June 23rd-25th at the Cannon Center in Memphis, TN.

Not to be forgotten the new Android game app: Galaxy Explorer Match Game accompanies the 2nd-5th Grade STEM reading book, “Champion and Dominion Explore the Galaxy” produced by Clyde Publisher and written by husband and wife team, Jeral and Elizabeth Clyde out of Atlanta, GA working across publishing, media, and film together.

The “Champion and Dominion Explore the Galaxy Blanket” brings the solar system to life and is becoming a bedtime essential.
