

August 18 is Time Travelers Rights Day

The day celebrates the fundamental right of all humans to safely and ethically observe time in non-linear fashion. Timesteader will recognize this day through education and awareness initiatives.

Casper, Wyoming Jun 22, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - August 18 is the designated date for Time Traveler's Rights Day. The day celebrates the fundamental right of all humans to safely and ethically observe time in a non-linear fashion.

Timesteader is taking an active role in educating and preparing our fellow humans for this important holiday, which is informally called 4-D Day ("Fourth Dimension" Day). At the moment, Timesteader is the sole distributor of the Kairos Alliance's primary time claim (see more on TikTok and YouTube).

In case you missed it, here's a recap of the Kairos Alliance's recent announcement and designation of Timesteader as an exclusive agent (see more on TikTok and YouTube):

Attention Inhabitants: due to amplified volatility in human affairs, The Kairos Alliance announces the immediate claim of all time between November 24, 4714 BC and February 13, 3268 AD. The claim is valid within 100,000 astronomical units of the solar system's gravitational center.

This urgent action will allow humanity (and any equivalent inhabitants) to accelerate the pursuit of time travel in an orderly and ethical fashion.

Working through its commercial partner Timesteader LLC, Kairos Alliance will begin transferring Time Claim deeds to interested parties.

Time Claim holders will enjoy all rights and privileges for controlling time travel to a specific date in the past or future, up to and including full rights of governorship, administrative authority, exploratory and commerce rights as well as full occupancy rights, so long as exercised in accordance with the Kairos Alliance Code of Time Travel Ethics.

Additional instructions will be released imminently for all individuals interested in making a timely claim for a date within that period. Those interested should visit www.timesteader.com and follow @timesteader on Twitter and TikTok for breaking announcements.

"We are committed to the safe implementation of time travel technology, and with our guidance, the children of earth will be ready," said Juliette Durand, Plenipotentiary Agent of The Kairos Alliance.

"Fear not, children of earth," Durand said. "We are benevolent. Always."

To ensure an orderly transition of privileges, Time Claims will be released in batches, with initial dates focused on the years 1976 through 2013 as well as a selection of other dates generally considered by humans to be famous or infamous, such as July 20, 1969, November 22, 1963, and July 30, 2015. Select dates from the medieval, iron, and bronze ages, as well as dates from the future, will also be released on an experimental basis.

The Kairos Alliance validates its claim through the transmission of this press release and a corresponding video message to its 13,000 TikTok and Twitter followers. It is established as a fixed point in time as the first and only legitimate claim.

CAUTION: Timesteader LLC fully disclaims any and all responsibility for injury, financial loss, embarrassment, or other misadventures that may be incurred during time travel-related activities. You MUST consult all relevant professionals before embarking on time travel.

Monitor developments as they happen at @timesteader on Twitter and TikTok and at Timesteader.com.
