As for her academic appointments, she has served as an Assistant Professor of Medicine at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine since 2014.

Cardiology is a branch of medicine that deals with the disorders of the heart, as well as some parts of the circulatory system. The field includes medical diagnosis and treatment of congenital heart defects, coronary artery disease, heart failure, valvular heart disease, and electrophysiology. Cardiologists are doctors who diagnose, assess, and treat patients with diseases and defects of the heart and blood vessels (the cardiovascular system).

As a testament to her success, Dr. Kezerashvili's medical career is colored by many outstanding contributions to medicine, including several publications, research, and scientific presentations. She was part of various honor societies including the National Honor Society, the Golden Key National Honor Society, and the Sigma Beta Honor Society. She was also on the Dean's List at the State University of New York at Stony Brook (1997-2001).

Outside of her practice, she enjoys painting, photography, and playing the piano. She is trilingual in English, Spanish, and Russian.
