Bald and Bonkers Network Launches Affiliate Program

Bald and Bonkers Network CEO, Dakota Frandsen, launches a brand new affiliate program to help independent creatives earn a little extra cash while in trying times.

Twin Falls, Idaho Jul 2, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Did you know that affiliate marketing can help one's income double or more?

With jobs and work hours being cut to compensate for rising fuel and inflation rates, many are looking to find other sources of income to stay afloat in what is expected to be trying times. The international media production company, Bald and Bonkers Network LLC, has launched a brand new affiliate program to help independent creatives earn a little extra cash during such times.

CEO Dakota Frandsen has allowed his international media company to help independent creatives organically grow their audiences without having to resort to shady practices, likely to get them banned on major social media platforms. In doing so, he has set up an affiliate program in the Bald and Bonkers Shop, which offers commission-based earnings for every sale! While the strange and unknown is the company's focus, Frandsen promises that every skill learned in paranormal research can be transferred to numerous high-income-potential fields for those who show enough drive.

"Basically you put in the work," Frandsen states, "We will help you grow. Our company is small, for now, which means we offer true heart-to-heart support for all our members and fans."

What makes Frandsen's offer so special? Those who sign up, who happens to have a YouTube channel, will be featured on a brand new "Affiliates" on the Bald and Bonkers TV Network so they can cash in on our constantly growing audience to help their dreams grow!
