Hollywood, CA - After a successful 2022 Spring European tour, The Falling Doves will continue their second leg of the tour this September for another round of electrifying rock 'n' roll, promoting their latest album, Love at First Bite - The Singles Collection. Their Double Vision 2022 World Tour will resume Friday, September 9th in England.

The Falling Doves are a force of electric energy. Their music is a fusion of stadium rock with garage rock familiarity, a sound that has helped the guys win over the ears and hearts of fans around the globe.

Personally mentored by Phil Solem (The Rembrandts), the late Scott Weiland (Stone Temple Pilots), and Pete Best (the Beatles), The Falling Doves have just finished a string of dates with Cheap-Trick. Past tours include Echo & The Bunnymen, Peter Murphy of Bauhaus, Fastball, and Gilby Clarke (Guns N' Roses).

Fresh from their Spring UK/Europe 2022 tour the band will return to the UK and will attempt to sweep through Europe, Asia, Australia, and Latin America with nothing short of thunder and lightning.

The band will be visiting as many countries as allowed by the ease of restrictions during the remainder of 2022.

While in the UK at the height of the pandemic, the band sought refuge at the legendary Abbey Road Studios, working under the direction of engineer/producer Chris Bolster with pre-production done at Motor Museum Studios in Liverpool (Oasis, 1975, Arctic Monkeys) for a future album set to be called, Liverpool.

The Falling Doves Double Vision 2022 World Tour will bring elements of a stadium to live concert production into small halls, with the rich visual texture of music videos and an element of lights and theater you would expect to see at large arenas from major stadium rockers.

Grab your leather jacket and don't let the lightning pass you by as the storm rolls through your town.
