Berlin, Germany Jul 15, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - The Covid-19 epidemic has brought the world to a sudden halt where public gatherings, art exhibitions, and sports festivals are strictly prohibited across the globe. In these times of crisis, Kunstplaza has come forward with a silver bullet solution by offering the finest online gallery for selling art online. Artists, art dealers, gallery owners, art journalists, and persons interested in art can avail the platform and the online gallery for selling and buying unique pieces of art, creating an online space for one's masterpiece, and increasing awareness and media coverage.

Kunstplaza as a complete platform offers Online Magazine, Art Blog, Online Gallery, Sell Art Online, Buy Art Online, and the Artist Community. Various sections of the online gallery carry interesting features ranging from an advertisement on social media to making valuable contacts with like-minded people. Kunstplaza is making internet and social media marketing straightforward for contemporary artists in the standstill world of today.

The choice is the key. Kunstplaza, therefore, puts forward a wide range of artwork including paintings, limited art prints, mixed media art, sculptures, crafts, photo art, and digital art for the convenience of artists and art lovers to ensure speedy and effective internet marketing for contemporary artists. The Kunstplaza online gallery is an excellent medium for selling art online and presenting one's work to the world. By increasing awareness and creating feedback on various works, the online gallery not only supports showcasing and portfolio submissions for artworks but spread them on social media as well. One can promote one's website or Facebook fan page through the tools and aids of the online gallery.

In order to be an active member of the Kunstplaza community, one has to register oneself to exhibit one's work in the Kunstplaza online gallery. Registration is free and quick while navigation through the online gallery is easy, result oriented, and profitable which exponentially increases the chances of sales opportunities. The Kunstplaza serves as a medium between the sellers and buyers and it does not charge commissions for selling the works of art. It's free and therefore it's riskless for any artist giving it a try.

The ongoing fear of the Covid-19 epidemic has drastically transformed the social norms around the world. Keeping a distance of six feet from others in public places, and wearing face masks and hand gloves make it troublesome to visit public places and engage in various activities. Now it's time to revisit the online digital strategies and encourage online internet marketing for contemporary artists.

The Kunstplaza is not only an efficient online gallery for selling art online but a profitable platform for internet marketing for contemporary artists as well. The features offered on this platform are devoid of coming into contact with others in markets or exhibitions making it one of the best one-stop platforms for both sellers and collectors. Being a hub of creativity, the Kunstplaza online gallery is the center of interest for artists, art dealers, patrons, museums, and people interested in the art of all kinds in German-speaking countries.

About Us: The online gallery on Kunstplaza offers artists and creative people of all kinds a platform to present, showcase and promote their works of art and make them accessible to a broad audience. It does not matter whether one has already posted one's work in a gallery, in another marketplace, or in a social network such as Facebook, Google+, Twitter, Pinterest, Instagram, DeviantArt, Dribbble, etc. Kunstplaza is basically free for all and only charges a small fee for extra services like added promotion reach for works of art, which one can find in the price list. There are no further commissions and fees (such as for the sale).
