Benton Harbor, Michigan Jul 14, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Tarps Now® is pleased to announce the release of a new informational Construction Tarps Guide that discusses the spectrum and specialty of protection provided by Construction Tarps. We will also highlight some of the most common types of construction tarps and explain what they are used for. By understanding the different types of Construction Tarps available, contractors can make sure that selections are appropriate for any given task.

Heavy-duty industrial-grade construction tarps provide a safe environment at job sites, plants, warehouses, in the field, and other work areas. They help protect people, equipment, and structures in these locations and take a wide range of forms. Types of construction tarps we have available for purchase include temporary building enclosure tarps, containment tarps, scaffold sheeting, and scaffold tarps, concrete curing blankets, safety debris netting, construction scaffold debris netting, orange barrier fencing, safety snow fencing, lifting tarps, construction debris tarps, snow tarps, and basic tarps.

Construction tarps are available in a range of sizes, weights, and colors, and can also be custom-made to fit every unique contractor's specifications such as temperature changes, moisture, abrasion, and high winds, as well as a fire retardant. These tarps are ideal for guarding a building's interior against the elements, preventing moisture buildup on scaffolding that could lead to injuries, equipment coverage, temporary walls or fences, and other key applications. You can also choose construction privacy fence screens with an 87-percent shade rating.
