

Woman Owned Company Partners with Association of Cannabinoid Specialists

Plant medicine is taking America by storm. Safe access to the plant has become extremely important.

Charlotte, North Carolina Jul 28, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - Ellen Tacher, the powerhouse CEO/Founder of North Carolina's first hemp brand Prime Sunshine, has partnered with the Association of Cannabinoid Specialists to provide access to quality education around plant medicine. Her company sources its products from proprietary heirloom seeds grown naturally in the sun. Her products are organic and GMO-free. Every wholesale client will be given a 1-year subscription with the Association of Cannabinoid Specialists to learn about cannabinoid-based medicines.

Ellen has worked tirelessly for years to provide safe and quality access to plant medicine. She works with Harvard University and its researchers on providing accurate dosing information. Over 10 years ago after a vicious dog attack that almost took her life and after more than twelve surgeries to save her life, she was left addicted to opioids & 62% disabled. She turned to CBD to bounce back and decided to help others while doing so.

The entire Prime Sunshine product line is derived from an internationally pedigreed, proprietary, certified seed brought over on a steamship from England in the early 1800s. It was used by Pfizer Pharmaceutical, Elli Lilly, and McKesson up until 1937.

The Association of Cannabinoid Specialists is a group of researchers and medical professionals who are at the forefront of cannabinoid medicine. Through a variety of approaches, they ensure patients are safeguarded and provided with the most up-to-date research available

The partnership between the Association and Prime Sunshine will expand their collective reach and ensure safer, more data-driven wellness routines across the country.
