Are you a beginner trader or an experienced pro? Regardless of your field of expertise, there always exists the question among traders on when is the right time to buy or sell stocks. If you're asking this question in earnest and are looking for an answer that's sure to minimize your risks and ensure security, here are simple tips on when to invest by SEBI registered research analyst Kapil Verma.

Eye The Right Time

9:30 am - 10:30 am is the best time to trade. The stock market opens for trading at 9:15. In the first 15 minutes, experienced negotiators wait to make their move. As a result, that first 15-minute slot is best avoided.

There's No The Best Day

In general, the stock prices are at their lowest on Mondays and hits their highest on Fridays that's why multiple sites and people advise that these are the best days to trade. However, as per Kapil, there is no best day to trade, in fact, one should purely trade on the basis of research & analysis. If only Mondays and Fridays were good enough, why does the market fluctuate daily.

Study Conditions Well

When a stock's price is low, one should buy it because its price would increase later, and when it is high, one can sell it. It is not that simple. A lower-priced stock's value can decrease further after being bought. A dip in price can occur due to multiple reasons hence, without studying the stock, its company, the market, and the overall economy, a low-price stock cannot be bought. Specifically for buying Futures and Options, Kapil suggests that when Open Interest (OI) is low, it can be bought.

More Factors To Consider

Watch the news and study the company regularly to know what's happening in the country, how can it affect the stock market, how much dividend is the company paying out, and whether the company has any positive or negative news. These affect the stock prices too and should be considered whilst taking a trading decision.

Consult SEBI Registered Analysts

Getting advice, being consulted, or taking suggestions from anyone is fundamental in everyone's personal decision but, consulting SEBI registered research analysts can be reliable due to their extensive experience, continuously evolving knowledge, and skills that get polished on daily basis.
