Are you or a loved one suffering from mental fog, exhaustion, depression, mood swings, hot flashes, night sweats, impotence, or a low sex drive, these symptoms can frequently be caused by the decline in hormones as a consequence of aging. Many will try creams, pills, diets, and supplements that fail to provide relief. Often, these treatments make the symptoms even worse. For a real recovery, patients must try and treat the root of the problem and not just the symptoms. Conventional medicine typically tries to fix the variety of symptoms of hormonal disorders rather than trying to treat the individual. Care for Womens Medical Group physicians focuses on maintaining lifelong wellness rather than offering short-term solutions.
