Rahway, New Jersey Sep 24, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - The 2022 1st Annual Mentors of Performing Arts & Broadcasters Virtual Conference will take place October 13-15 and October 20-22, 2022. Birdsong Association of Broadcasting & Arts (BABA) will present this celebrity-filled event with entertainment and music industry executives, producers, songwriters, record labels, and more. This four-day virtual presentation will focus on children and teenagers. The conference will be live streamed nationwide on the organization's Facebook page and YouTube channel.

The Birdsong Association of Broadcasting & Arts was created from the vision imparted by its founder, Dr. James C. Birdsong, Jr. The vocalist, songwriter, preacher, and author received a message from God in 2018 with the message "Preparing today's youth as voices in Arts and Broadcasting". His vision materialized one year later when Mr. Birdsong started the organization in 2019. The 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization serves African American youth from K-12 grade to help them pursue careers in performing arts and broadcasting through programs, scholarships, workshops, and events. They partner with local schools, colleges, and universities to achieve their goals. They still stand on the original message turned mission "Preparing today's youth as voices in Arts & Broadcasting". Since its inception, BABA has mentored many young people.

Dr. James C. Birdsong, Jr is a member of the famous Birdsong family. His family legacy includes the legendary Cindy Birdsong of the Supremes, the late Edwin Birdsong, who was a Grammy® award winner and legendary 1970s keyboardist, and NBA All-Star Otis Birdsong. Although he came from a famous family, Dr. Birdsong has made a name for himself with an impressive resume of his own. He is the recipient of over 40 awards including the Bill Clinton award and S&M Gospel Music Honors Award. In addition to his many awards, Dr. Birdsong has been a devoted advocate and is viewed by many as a voice of the people in the African American community. His impact has not gone unnoticed. President Joe Biden recently acknowledged his achievements with a personalized letter from the White House. Dr. Birdsong also received two of the esteemed Newsome Awards. One was for Humanitarian of the Year and the other for Promoter of the year. Governor Larry Hogan of Maryland congratulated him with a Governor's citation. In Marquis Who's Who, Dr. Birdsong is a multi-listee in the auto biographical reference book, Who's Who in America. He was also presented with the Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award whose past recipients include former President Bill Clinton, the late General Colin Powell, and businessman Warren Buffett.

2022 1st Annual Mentors of Performing Arts & Broadcasters Virtual Conference Dr. Birdsong has been honored throughout the United States and internationally for his contributions to music, arts, education, and humanities.
