Background: UNIFY is a nonprofit organization and international movement that operates through peer-to-peer networks and social media to shed light on important global challenges with a solutions-oriented, spiritual, and community-based approach. UNIFY recognizes that the only true path to global peace is through inner peace and thus aims to amplify educational programs to foster community support and engagement.

Marking their 10th Anniversary, UNIFY hosted their first globally synchronized meditation flash mob for International Day of Peace in 2012. This grass-roots organization brings together individuals, organizations, and communities for globally synchronized events through its people-powered social networks. Similar to massive global productions like Live-Aid but unique in that they utilize interactive social media streaming technology combined with their enormous network of engaged individuals. Throughout the year they host initiatives, live streams, and globally synchronized events to highlight causes like International Women's Day, World Water Day, Earth Day, Yoga Day, and others. Events for The International Day of Peace begin on September 10th, Suicide Prevention and Awareness Day, and stretch through September 24th.
