

"Ghosts and the Afterlife" wins Best Documentary Film of 2022!

LOS ANGELES, CA, for release on October 18, 2022

Los Angeles, California Oct 18, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - "Ghosts and the Afterlife," the first truly scientific investigation into ghosts and life after death, wins Best Documentary Film of 2022 at the Tarzana International Film Festival immediately after its highly–successful premiere screening at the Regal Theatres in Sherman Oaks.

"Ghosts and the Afterlife" was executive produced by Garrett Stewart Sayre, edited by Keven Albers, narrated by Kelsey Bohlen, and directed by Steve Sayre.

Hollywood Picture Studios is now preparing "Ghosts and the Afterlife" for submission to the 2023 Academy Awards. All the reviews for the film after the premiere were glowing. As one of the members of the audience stated: "The film is a rare combination of being extremely informative, fascinating, and extremely entertaining!"

"Ghosts and the Afterlife" has an all-star expert cast, which includes James Van Praagh (creator and executive producer of "Ghost Whisperer"), Dr. Vernon Sylvest, M.D. (pathologist), Dr. Kenneth Rose (Harvard Ph.D. in philosophy and world religions), Psychics Eddie Conner, Justin Terry, and Reverend F. Reed Brown, along with Dr. Jeffrey Rediger, M.D. (Harvard Professor and researcher into the phenomena of life after death experiences and spiritual healing), Dr. Norm Shealy, M.D., Ph.D., Captain Frederick "Skip" Atwater (the Operations Officer in charge of the top-secret military StarGate program that investigated consciousness beyond the physical mind) and many others.

The film also includes special-guest appearances by Jay Thomas, Emmy award-winning performer best known for Cheers, Mr. Holland's Opus, and Dragonfly. "Ghosts and the Afterlife" was Jay's last film project.
