

Taleam CEO, Ahmadzai says, the future of Afghanistan is uncertain

The Taliban now control most of Afghanistan, in spite of exhausted peace efforts by the locals and many fleeing from the ongoing conflict for help.

Kabul, Afghanistan Oct 8, 2022 (IssueWire.com) - The Taliban took over the country last August by force, resulting in a widespread humanitarian catastrophe and economic meltdown.

Meladul Haq Ahmadzai, CEO of Taleam Systems has written a lot of analysis over the years of the impact of the war on the Afghan people. He said that Afghan people always vow real peace and stability where they can grow up and lead normal life.

Ahmadzai says, “At this time, people need help now and we see it through media coverage - they're running for their lives.”

As all this happens, the effects of climate change on the people of Afghanistan are even more damaging.

Since the Ashraf Ghani government collapse, various countries have also closed their borders and deported Afghans back to their countries. Ahmadzai concludes, “when they return to Afghanistan, they are tortured and labelled as traitors, something we hear a lot about from various sources.”

In the meantime, the Taliban fighters are unable how to respond to the humanitarian crisis in Afghanistan as it continues and as the economic situation continues to worsen than ever before.
