Manchester and nearby region conservatory tiled roofs

While we're happy to build a tiled conservatory roof in Manchester from the ground up, we can also convert an outdated glass or polycarbonate roof into a tiled roof as a portion of our substitute conservatory roof services, making an old conservatory a year-round usable space. Such a room can allow you to use your conservatory year-round, regardless of the season.

You can utilize a conservatory for any purpose, whenever you like, and with a tiled roof for your glass extension. Internal plastered ceilings in tiled conservatory roofs can be equipped with speakers and lighting to give the space a cozier atmosphere. We can also add a few roof lights if you're worried they won't let in enough light. They also come in various fashionable colors and can be used in most conservatory styles.

For the conservatory roof, consider the tile colors and types

For your converted conservatory roof, we offer two kinds of lightweight tiles in various colors to match the tile on your home already in place.

Lightweight slate

Britmet and Tapco tiles give the appearance of real slate and are suitable for lightweight roofing, such as a tiled conservatory roof. Both are long-lasting and come with a 40-year product guarantee. These are ideal if you want to match the slate on your building's roof that you already have or if you simply like how these tiles look.

Shingle tiles

With a weight of only 7kg per square meter, the lightweight shingle tiles are once again ideal for composite garden office roof conversions. These tiles are perhaps the most popular among our customers and are a little less expensive than slate tiles. A Forty-year product assurance is also included.
