"I am from Pakistan, an accountant by profession, and I work for a company in London. My story behind traveling is to observe different cultures, learn from them, meet new people, and listen to their stories, experiences, and opinions about life. Sharing my stories with others is for those who cannot travel or those who want to travel but are not much motivated. My aim behind sharing my experiences and knowledge is to preserve them in digital form so that anyone can benefit from them," says Zaid Imran.

Moreover, being a good traveler, Zaid Imran is welcoming to change and is keen to observe and pay attention to the tiny details of every place. Since rising inflation has directly affected traveling costs, many people find it challenging to chase their dream of traveling and exploring different parts of the world.
