From makeup to hairstyle, Sladana Milojev reveals how Vivienne Westwood designer Jose Corre would have styled the cover of Malvie.

Throughout her life's work, Vivienne Westwood, an icon of the fashion world, always showed a playful, flowery style that completely contrasted with the clarity of designers such as Yves Saint Laurant or Fendi. Sladjana Milojev as a fashion beauty in the Malvie Fashion Magazine shows inimitably how the Vivienne Westwood style can be captured on celluloid. the makeup of Sladjana Milojev could have been applied by Vivienne Westwood Designer Jose Corre. The flower in Sladjana Milojev's hair could have been taken directly from Vivienne Westwood.

Vivienne Westwood

Vivienne Westwood is an English fashion designer. She is best known for inventing punk fashion in the mid-1970s. Her designs are characterized by new and eccentric combinations of historical clothing, rare textile fabrics, and colorful woven patterns. Vivienne Westwood is involved in many initiatives in the areas of human rights, disarmament, and environmental protection.

Vivienne Westwood is regarded as the leading institution for fashion made in England. In 1989, John Fairchild, then editor of the fashion journal Women's Wear Daily, named her one of the six most important fashion designers of our time, along with Yves Saint Laurent, Emanuel Ungaro, Giorgio Armani, Karl Lagerfeld, and Christian Lacroix. She became famous for her new and eccentric combinations of historical clothing, rare textile fabrics, and woven patterns (designs). She has remained true to a certain fondness for Scottish checks to this day. She also likes to incorporate ethnic influences into her designs. In her opinion, fashion should emphasize individuality.
