

Laid off Meta employee raises $3M in angel funding for his startup within a week

Ilya Pyatevecherov, who was most recently engineering manager at Meta, was laid off from Meta in October and within a week raised $3M in funding for his security startup.

Los Angeles, California Dec 13, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Datority.com, a stealth-mode security startup, announced today that it has raised $3 million in angel funding from prominent investors in Silicon Valley and engineering leaders at top tech companies.

Founded by Ilya Pyatevecherov, a former engineer at Meta, Datority.com is focused on the rapidly growing security space. Pyatevecherov was part of the recent Meta layoffs, but was able to quickly secure funding for his new venture.

"I am thrilled to have the support of such notable investors and leaders in the tech industry," said Pyatevecherov. "With their backing, we are well-positioned to make a significant impact in the security space."

Datority.com is currently in stealth mode, but the company has shared that it is working on cutting-edge technology to help businesses and individuals protect their data and assets from cyber threats.

"We believe that Datority.com has the potential to be a game-changer in the security space," said Pyatevecherov. "Our team is dedicated to developing innovative solutions that will help keep our customers safe from the ever-evolving world of cyber threats."

The $3 million in funding will be used to support the continued development of Datority.com's technology and to expand the company's team. The company is currently hiring for key positions in engineering and security.

"We are grateful for the support of our investors and are excited to bring our technology to market," said Ilya, Founder of Datority.com. "We are dedicated to helping our customers stay safe in the digital world."
