Giving back has been a long-time mission...

"Connecting our efforts with St Barts London Charity and contributing has been important to us. Because giving back with assistance has been a long-time mission as a director and advisor," said John DeGaetano, Director. John is also the author of the Sherlock Holmes 10 Minute Plays Collection and several other short stories designed for young actors and adults to practice their acting skills.

"The project was coincidentally driven by one of the main characters, Dr. Watson due to his fictional presence. In the original Arthur Conan Doyle, stories mention him as a resident of the hospital in the 1800s. Certainly, it seemed fitting that we recognize the hospital's incredible work on cancer research. As a result, we earmarked some of the proceeds from the production, said DeGaetano. "Furthermore, our cast made an amazing team effort to put the production together in such a short amount of time."

Produced by Irish Theatre Presents. Above all, the talented London cast for the production brought to life the iconic characters in a quick turnaround on stage. The stories grow in intensity as it's up to Holmes, Dr. Watson, and the audience to immediately unravel the mysteries." Based in part on the career writings of Holmes' long-time friend Dr. Watson. The plays are an homage to Conan Doyle's iconic characters, brought to life in just 10 to 20 minutes in length.
