Dehra Dun Cantonment, Uttarakhand Dec 16, 2022 (Issuewire.com) - Outlook is a part of Microsoft, which is used to send and receive emails and includes features like a calendar, task management, contact management, journal, web browser, and notes. Outlook stores data in a file called PST (personal storage table). Which has a feature to protect data with a password and is easy to access and port; hence it is preferred by users. It can also store up to 50 G.B. of the mailbox data. On the other hand, Lotus Notes is an application that contains multiple components like an address book, calendar, emails, etc.

But the reason why users consider migrating from Lotus Notes to Outlook is that it has higher maintenance cost as compared to Outlook. Another reason can be that the user interface of Outlook is much more user-friendly than Lotus Notes. Outlook has the option to login into multiple accounts at a single time, whereas in Lotus Notes, you can create one account at a time. Therefore users consider converting Lotus Notes to Outlook.
