

National Facilities Direct

New York City, New York Jan 28, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Companies tackle numerous facility management challenges to effectively keep their office building, equipment, and infrastructures in good shapes, such as lack of facility information availability caused by outdated or paper-based processes, which leads to extra work and slower operations, inefficient facility compliance that needs excessive time to execute, resulting in an unproductive workforce and increase the risk of errors and omission; in addition to proper energy management, constant damage control, and creating a sustainable workspace, because opting for environmental processes and abandoning the present ones can cause substantial losses to the company. Each organization can face a unique set of challenges depending on its size, industry, business model, etc. National Facilities Direct offers customized, effective, and modern facilities management solutions that enable FMs to resolve facilities management challenges they might face.

National Facilities Direct's proprietary technology streamlines workflows. It efficiently captures historical data for companies using work orders for the care and maintenance of its locations and equipment, numerous repetitive tasks, or all of the above. This software helps attain greater efficiency and effectiveness in the job being done. It is a singular and integrated system that can generate, assess, and prioritize work requests and track work orders and data history.

A cloud-based application that helps with consumable inventory tracking, assets, space, and energy management, preventive and scheduled maintenance tracking, and strategic resource planning. This software's capabilities can vary significantly, but more comprehensive platforms have features such as mobile access, asset history, automatic invoicing, reporting, and many more. Using data to identify trends and uncover insights is also significantly more accessible, especially when paired with a robust analytics platform.

National Facilities Direct's proprietary technology allows a smooth and easy onboarding of clients and gives them a very easy-to-use technology approach from the moment they sign up with National Facilities Direct. It also looks at converting the facility management onboarding to technician management, product procurement, part procurement, equipment procurement, billing, etc. National Facilities Direct also takes care of all client pain areas by taking a technical approach to the traditional market of facility management or a technical approach to the conventional ways of doing work and business in facility management.

Vince Keil, the National Facilities Direct founder, said, "We fully cover the gamut, as most facility management companies have a niche specialty, while we excel in all areas, including waste and energy management. As a multi-vertical company, we don't just bundle everything together for facility management; we tackle each vertical individually so that we become the only vendor our clients need, happily taking their Rolodex of vendors' places."

And answering our question on National Facilities Direct's software, "the proprietary technology centralizes all aspects for all parties in one place, providing real-time data and insights for better well-rounded, more encompassing decision-making. This software enables facility management to function the way it was intended."

Watch out for more announcements from National Facilities Direct, keep in touch with us, and sign up if you want to be a part of the software evolution and one of the top facility management companies.

Visit www.nationalfacilitiesdirect.com for more details.

Contact Person: John Fox

Email: contact@nfd.io

Media Contact

National Facilities Direct

contact@nfd.io

(833) 693-5815

30 Wall Street, New York, NY 10005

Source : National Facilities Direct

See on IssueWire