

Songwriting.Tools Announces the Launch of Mobile App, cut-ups

Berlin, Germany Jan 5, 2023 (IssueWire.com) - Songwriting.Tools are thrilled to announce the launch of cut-ups, a mobile app that helps creative writers find inspiration through the well-known analog method, the cut-up technique. Used by writers and artists for centuries, the cut-up technique involves physically cutting up or rearranging text from oneself or other sources to create new material. Now in a faster, digital format, the cut-ups app allows users to swipe and tap through random text fragments, creating endless possibilities of writing prompts and ideas. The mobile app is available and officially launched as of January 5th, 2023.

Songwriting.Tools believe cut-ups provide an efficient and accessible way to brainstorm and overcome writer's block for creative writers of all kinds, including those interested in music writing, poems, lyrics, books, and beyond. The heightened user experience will further include the ability to import texts from multiple sources, scan text with one's camera, and organize multiple collections of documents. One can import or snap a photo and organize text from news articles, websites, books, handwritten writings, and more.

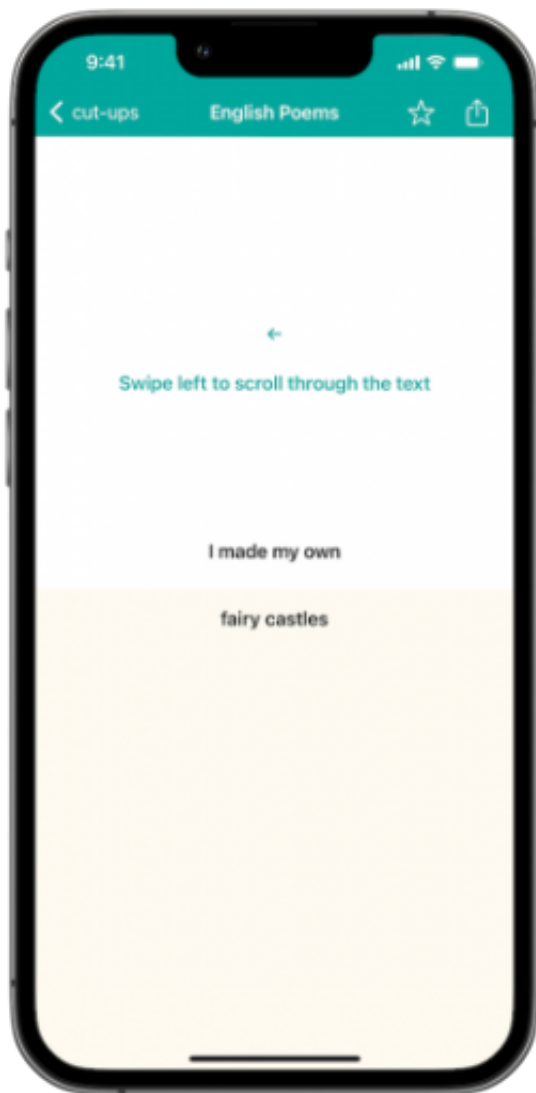

"All our apps arose from solving real problems we faced during our own journey of musicianship," said Songwriting.Tools founder Danial Sanjrani, "we are very proud of cut-ups, and know it will assist the many other writers and thinkers out there who are feeling stuck or looking for new ways to find bright ideas, encouragement, and originality."

Creative writers, songwriters, poets, authors, and others can find and download cut-ups on the Apple App Store today.
