Wilmington, Delaware Feb 16, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Bulk Product Boxes

Bulk product boxes are used to package products that are not individually packaged, or that need to be shipped in bulk. These include things like candies and other sweets, and food items such as fruit and vegetables, nuts and seeds, grains, and cereals. Bulk packing also refers to packaging for large volumes of merchandise such as toys or electronic components.

Presentation Boxes

Presentation boxes are used to store and protect items, display items, transport items, or ship items. Presentation boxes come in all sizes and shapes including square, rectangular, round, and elliptical. They can be made of materials such as paperboard or corrugated cardboard.

Retail Packaging Boxes

Retail boxes are used for products that will be sold in retail stores. These boxes are usually made from corrugated cardboard and have a tear-off tab or perforation on the bottom to help customers easily remove the product from their box.

Retail packaging boxes can be printed with your logo or other design elements, including text, graphics, and/or photos to give shoppers an impression of what they'll find inside when they open up this product packaging box!

Event Packaging Boxes

Event packaging boxes are used to package products that are to be given away as gifts or prizes at events. They can also be used for other occasions like weddings, birthdays, anniversaries, and family reunions.

Event packaging boxes come in different sizes depending on the number of items you want to pack into your container. We have a variety of sizes from small (height 3 inches) up to large (height 6 inches).

Customization Options

Customization options are available for all types of product packaging boxes. You can customize the size, shape, and color of your product packaging box. You can also choose from a variety of printing options such as full-color printing or die-cut labels that fit with any style and design you want to use.

You can even add additional features such as hidden compartments inside your product packaging box so that customers will have extra storage space for their products at home or in business settings where space is limited like retail stores and warehouses where inventory needs to be kept secure until it's sold out by customers who want them now!

Premium Finishing Options

We also offer a variety of premium finishing options for your product packaging boxes. These include:

- Gold and Silver Foil Stamping - We can add this to our standard foil stamping process to create a luxurious look for your products.
- Hot Stamping - This is where we stamp your logo on the box with heat and then apply various materials over top, making it look like it was done by hand or with an artistic touch. It's very similar to embossing but has more depth and character than some other types of embossing at BoxesGen!
- Embossed/Debossed/Metallic Ink - Our machines have the ability to apply these methods quickly while maintaining great quality control throughout production runs (we use different dies depending on what type you choose). You'll get something that looks like it came right off an iron press!
