

Faith-Based Film 'Bright Sky' Begins Production in LA

Faith-based filmmakers Nathan Clarkson and Spencer Folmar team up and begin production on original film BRIGHT SKY in Los Angeles California

Los Angeles, California Feb 11, 2023 (IssueWire.com) - Production on the film Bright Sky has begun in Los Angeles California.

Written by Nathan Clarkson (Don't Know Jack, Miracle on Highway 34) the film is being directed by indie veteran Spencer Folmar (Generational Sins, Shooting Heroin).

Bright Sky is a neo-western film with strong themes of faith and family that Clarkson's previous movies have become known for while having the signature grit from Folmar who has made a career of telling edgier stories of faith.

It follows a single mother, played by Keelia (Beat the Shift), escaping a dark past with her son, played by Elias Kemuel (Family Camp), to the small town of Bright Sky, where she comes in contact with an escaped outlaw, played by Clarkson, looking for redemption.

The film also stars a cast of strong supporting actors including Josh Murray (Killing Lincoln), Darwin Harris (The Bay), Sharonne Lanier (Son of the South), Rankin Dean (At The End of Eight), and more.

The film is being produced by Clarkson (Clarkson Creations) and Folmar (Hard Faith Films) as well as Executive Producer, Louis Giovino (Beloved Entertainment). Bright Sky begins production in Los Angeles in early 2023 and will complete filming in Colorado in the Summer of 2023.
