

Afrobeats Legendary story continues with I Dey Consider, Sean Dampite announces

Afrofusion music superstar mainstay releases new music 'I Dey Consider'

London, England Mar 1, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - #IDEYCONSIDER - A NIB OF SEAN DAMPTE'S MUSICAL ARSENAL

In this overtly saturated ball of musicians, Sean Dampite is one to reckon with for consciously leaving an imprint of diligence, consistency, and hard work. As the game is known to glorify those with whom it aligns, Sean dares to set on a different path this year with this new single, I Dey Consider.

We would recall that we've spent barely a week in the new year when he kicked right in with his first-ever live concert in Nigeria. That was the move to prepare us for his exponential music approach in 2023 after we've gotten used to his smooth shuttle between London and Lagos — a whole lifestyle experience that yielded his previous body of work The "Sean Dampte Live In Concert" movement will grace major cities Abuja and London later in the year we have been promised.

Sounding familiar and yet new that will make even the sincerest of music listeners take a mental pause at both the creative and commercial allure that the new single demonstrate, Sean Dampte is not deviating from his roots in easy music and the fusion of Afro; he has only taken us through another room or do we say corridor of music creation that is reserved for music geniuses.

I Dey Consider comes at an apt time in Nigerian society with so many speculations, propagandas, conspiracy theories, forecasted events, policies, unsettling thoughts, and buzzes flying in the air. The track speaks the minds of everyone who, discreetly or openly, has a course to rethink any decision. It's been a trend on Twitter in which netzines made requests, expressed their wishes, relayed their plans, or simply conveyed what's going on in their minds.

We've had to read tweets like '#iDeyConsider to japa from the country,' which means I am considering relocating from this country. This has so far contained the anticipation for the hit Afrobeat song. Sean is not only setting the tide for himself with his new single but for his listeners, who will bear the concerns raised about poverty alleviation and a better life in his true words.

As it is with every Sean Dampte record, #iDeyConsider is also an experience you shouldn't miss.
