Having studied psychology, Dr. Krystle earned her undergraduate degree from Columbia University in New York. “Family dentistry has been a way of life for me, and the passion for caring for children is in my genes. My mother, Dr. Lynda Dean-Duru, also a pediatric dentist, was my first inspiration for family dentistry. Having started my journey in family care working as a pediatric dental assistant at Ashburn Children’s Dentistry, I spent many summers as my mother’s mentee. Watching what seemed like a magical healing art she deployed while treating her patients and knowing the need and the power of proactive preventive dental health for children, I chose a career specializing in pediatric dentistry” expressed Dr. Krystle.

Having matured as a dental surgeon, she is constantly working to enhance her capabilities in the field. She maintains membership in several key industry organizations, including the Academy of Laser Dentistry, the Northern Virginia Dental Society, the Virginia Dental Association, the American Association for Functional Orthodontics, the American Dental Association, the American Laser Study Club, the Sleep & Airway Study Club, the American Academy of Physiological Medicine & Dentistry, the International Association of Orofacial Myology, the Foundation for Airway Health, the Breathe Institute (Ambassador), the Academy of Applied Myofunctional Sciences (founding member), and the ALF Interface Academy, Foundation for Airway Health.

Pediatric dentistry is the branch of dentistry dealing with children from birth through adolescence. Pediatric dentists specialize in oral care for infants, toddlers, children, and teenagers. When not helping her young patients build happy smiles, Dr. Krystle enjoys spending time with family and friends, growing in her faith, improving her dancing skills, learning boxing moves, traveling, and cheering on Washington sports teams.
