Severna Park, Maryland Mar 22, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Relevate, a leading provider of MLS and REALTOR® association management systems (AMS) and SSO Dashboards has partnered with leading real estate technology services firm Modern.tech to design and build a groundbreaking new system. The new platform will be branded as Relevate One (R1) and will deliver association and MLS executives a unified management system and Single Sign-On (SSO) Dashboard that meets their needs for years to come. "Relevate One will be the tool our clients need and deserve," said Mark Richburg, Relevate CEO. "We'll combine the user feedback gathered during focus groups with our almost 40 years of real estate experience to empower MLS and association staff that automates routine tasks, freeing them up to focus on their organizational goals." "To fully deliver on this promise, we are building an entirely new architecture from the ground up," said Richburg. "After a thoughtful and thorough selection process, we are thrilled to partner with Andrew and Modern.tech to bring powerful new technologies to the association and MLS market. Their unique blend of technology and real estate expertise makes them the right partner for the work ahead." "Mark's vision for the future of association management systems drew us to this project," said Andrew Coca, Modern.tech CEO. "He's an innovator in this space, and his deep dedication to his clients will ensure their needs are met through every feature of the platform we build together." Work has commenced on the new platform, with a 2024 release planned.
