They will be donating 20% of profits from all Cory Cory clothing sales the entire month of May to benefit The SIMS Foundation.

"There's a lot of controversies these days around companies advertising how much they "Give Back". But we wanted to show everyone exactly what we mean when WE say it and where the money from your clothing purchases and music streaming is going, aside from the artists making the music of course." - Sky Titan Founder Atlas Cage

What is the SIMS Foundation?

The SIMS Foundation provides mental health and substance use recovery services and support for musicians, music industry professionals, and their dependent family members. Through education, community partnerships, and accessible managed care, SIMS seeks to de-stigmatize and reduce mental health and substance use issues, while supporting and enhancing the well-being of the music community at large.

“ A few years back I was going through a pretty tough time as a working musician and had heard about SIMS. At the time I was very much in crisis mode, so I submitted an online application for SIMS Foundation sponsored services and thankfully was quickly approved and matched with a therapist. I honestly don't know where my life would be now if I hadn't had access to the help I needed, thanks to the SIMS Foundation.” - Cory Cory

The clothing comes with an exclusive live performance video, artwork, the original track and a lo-fi remix by producer Murphy. The songs are only available with your dress, no streaming for this release.

“Throw” is a song about trying to keep everything together on the outside while silently sinking into turmoil, and ultimately finding the courage to ask for help.” - Cory Cory

About Cory Cory:

Cory Cory is the Dark Pop alter-ego of vocalist and songwriter Jess Braun, based in Austin, Texas. After years of living and performing in NYC as a singer/songwriter, and writing hundreds of songs on her guitar, she suffered a serious injury to her wrist in 2018, leaving her unable to play the guitar. After two surgeries and a deep depression that followed, she turned to her keyboard and electronic music as a means of artistic expression.

About Sky Titan Media:

“We truly believe that independent music and art is still valuable...”

Started in 2019, Sky Titan is an indie record label with big dreams of creating a hub for creative minds. With music infused clothing, you get quality pieces that express who you are and what you believe in. You get to be one of the first to discover an artist you may not have found anywhere else and share with the people who matter most to you. It starts with original music and inspired art. It comes together in comfortable clothing.
