How In-Home Euthanasia (IHE) Works

Pet owners can easily find a compassionate and licensed veterinarian focused on IHE on Codapet's website.

- Prior to the appointment, the veterinarian contacts the family to address any questions or concerns they might have.
- The vet assists the family by going over the diagnosis and applying a quality-of-life assessment to objectively assess the pet's health and ensure there is no uncertainty about the need for euthanasia.
- The vet will explain the process and will proceed at a pace that is peaceful and comforting to you and your pet. The average unrushed visit takes between 45-60 minutes and pet parents are encouraged to remain with their pets and comfort them during the entire visit and process.
- For those who need support with aftercare, after their pet has peacefully passed, the veterinarian can assist with transportation and cremation services.

Benefits of at-home euthanasia may include:

- Convenience: You don't have to worry about transportation, which can be difficult if your pet is very ill, has mobility issues, or becomes distressed while traveling to the vet clinic.
- Comfort: You know your pet best and you can create the peaceful and comfortable environment that you know your pet loves.
- Control: You can choose the timing and location of the euthanasia, allowing you to make the decision on your own terms.
- Privacy: You can say goodbye to your pet in private, without the distractions and disruptions of a busy veterinary clinic.
