

NEW MUSIC Australian Newcomer Cooper Lower To Release Debut Single 'Little Did I Know' On June 2

Already an established name on the Australian indie/folk circuit, this 24 year old guitar virtuoso is on the verge of releasing his first single Little Did I Know, having broken onto the scene while making waves busking in London's Trafalgar Square.

Melbourne, Australia Apr 25, 2023 (IssueWire.com) - As a finalist in 2021's prestigious Australian Folk Music Awards and having already received invites to play international festivals such as Port Fairy Folk Festival in Australia and Tollwood in Munich, 2023 is set to be a big year for this Australian singer/songwriter.

A storyteller at heart, Little Did I Know is the first single from Cooper's upcoming debut album Conversations, the release date for which is currently under wraps, but we're expecting to drop late this year/early next. His aim here firmly set on using his platform to open up dialogue around mental health and belonging.

Connecting with people is at the forefront of Cooper Lower's messaging, a subject clearly reflected in this lead track. Produced by Kris Gorski and recorded in Poland as a result of an incredibly successful Kickstarter campaign, Little Did I Know showcases the wonderful pulling power of a grassroots following, one determined to propel Cooper onto the global stage where he belongs, so he can share his music with the rest of us.

Performing this summer across Germany, France, Spain and the UK, Cooper is set to kick things off with the release of his first single and the countdown is officially set for June 2nd.

If there's one thing we know for sure, it's that Little Did I Know is well on its way to gracing our airways all summer long.
