

AIM Recovery Calls for Better Mental Health Support for Young People in the UK

Maidstone, Kent May 5, 2023 (IssueWire.com) - AIM Recovery, a leading mental health recovery service provider, is calling for urgent action to address the failings highlighted in a recent article by The Guardian. The article highlights the damaging effects of the NHS's failure to provide timely mental health support to young people in the UK.

According to the article, young people are facing long waiting times for mental health treatment, which is having a detrimental impact on their wellbeing. This delay in treatment is leading to a significant increase in mental health issues among young people, including anxiety, depression, and suicidal thoughts.

Mark Timpson, an expert in mental health recovery at AIM Recovery, said: "The findings of this article are deeply concerning. Young people in the UK are struggling with mental health issues, and they are not receiving the support they need in a timely manner. This is unacceptable, and urgent action needs to be taken to address this issue."

Timpson added, "We need to prioritize mental health support for young people and invest in early intervention services that can identify and treat mental health issues before they become more severe. This is crucial to ensure that young people have access to the support they need to thrive."

AIM Recovery provides a range of mental health recovery services that support individuals on their journey to recovery. Their services include one-to-one therapy, group therapy, and community support programs.
