

AltimaCRM to Integrate Andtrader Platform

A Forex CRM framework can assist merchants with smoothing out their tasks, upgrading client encounters, and lifting income.

Glenfield, Auckland May 19, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - T-teck, a leading provider of financial technology solutions, has developed a cutting-edge trading platform called ANDtrader to address several technical barriers that the company encountered while using existing platforms.

ANDtrader is an in-house platform that is designed to provide brokers with a personalized experience on a sole trader level, as well as simple management tools in the back. The platform eliminates the need to switch between systems, thus making trading faster, more efficient, and more intuitive.

The ANDtrader platform provides brokers with a personalized experience that is tailored to their specific trading needs. The platform is designed to be flexible, allowing brokers to customize their trading environment according to their preferences.

This flexibility also extends to the back-end of the platform, which provides brokers with simple management tools that can be used to manage client accounts and other key business functions.

In a move that expands ANDtrader's reach, T-teck has partnered with Intivion Technologies to integrate the platform with Intivion's AltimaCRM solution. This integration means that Intivion's clients will have access to ANDtrader's cutting-edge trading technology, as well as Intivion's CRM solutions. The integration will also help to streamline the trading process, making it faster, more efficient, and more intuitive.

As part of the partnership, Intivion Technologies will be offering a full technological package under the brand name AltimaTrader. This package will include both the ANDtrader trading platform and Intivion's AltimaCRM solution. AltimaTrader will provide brokers with a complete suite of tools that can be used to manage all aspects of their trading business.

The partnership between T-teck and Intivion Technologies is a significant development in the financial technology space. It represents a shift away from traditional, one-size-fits-all trading platforms, and towards more flexible, personalized solutions.

This move also highlights the importance of collaboration in the financial technology sector, as companies seek to leverage each other's strengths and expertise to create better solutions for clients.

With the integration of ANDtrader into Intivion Technologies' AltimaCRM solution, brokers will have access to a comprehensive suite of tools to manage all aspects of their trading business, providing them with a competitive edge in the market.
