Vardi, Viljandi May 11, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Flashat, the World's First Cloud Country, has reinvented the way people interact and communicate in the digital realm with its innovative House and Street spaces. These spaces offer comprehensive platforms for private and public communication and social interaction, providing a unique experience for all Flashat Cloud Country Citizens.

The House is designed to provide a private area for communication, enabling Cloud Citizens to interact with family and close friends who are known to them even in real life. This space also allows Cloud Citizens to find new friends in the Cloud Country and establish connections. The House offers both private instant messaging options and groups for exploring more convenient messaging with added privacy. Whether you want to chat one-on-one or have a personal conversation with a group of friends, the House has you covered.

The Street, on the other hand, offers a more public area for Cloud Citizens to interact with other citizens. This is similar to social media for social interaction, where Cloud Citizens can hang out with other Cloud Citizens of the same or other Cloud Tribes. The Street consists of a more public platform for group messaging with Huddles and an exclusive broadcasting feature where Cloud Citizens can send broadcast messages to their connections on interesting topics. Within the Street, Cloud Citizens can explore new interests, meet new people, and connect with like-minded individuals across the Cloud Country.

“At the heart of Flashat Cloud Citizenship is the encouragement of interaction, centered around a shared passion or a desire to communicate,” said the Flashat Team. “The House and Street offer Cloud Citizens a customizable and comprehensive communication experience that caters to their individual preferences and needs.”

Overall, the innovative House and Street spaces offered by Flashat Cloud Country provide a unique and immersive platform that encourages interaction and connection, revolutionizing the way people communicate and socialize in the digital age. Whether seeking private messaging with family and close friends or socializing with other Cloud Citizens, these spaces provide a variety of features and options for both private and public communication.
