

Sunrise Recovery Centre Responds to SHRM Article on Alcohol Addiction in the Workplace

Hertfordshire, United Kingdom May 5, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Sunrise Recovery Centre, a leading provider of addiction treatment services, has issued a response to a recent article published by the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) about alcohol addiction in the workplace. The article highlights the significant impact that alcohol addiction can have on employees and employers and the importance of providing support and resources for those struggling with addiction.

Alan Keith, a spokesperson for Sunrise Recovery Centre, commented on the article, stating "We at Sunrise Recovery Centre are acutely aware of the damaging effects of alcohol addiction, not only on the individual but also on their colleagues and the wider workplace. We strongly support the call for employers to take an active role in addressing addiction in the workplace and providing support and resources for employees who may be struggling with alcohol addiction."

The SHRM article emphasizes that alcohol addiction is a global problem, affecting individuals in all industries and at all levels of employment. The article also highlights the importance of addressing the issue in a culturally sensitive manner, taking into account the unique needs and challenges faced by employees from different cultural backgrounds.

Sunrise Recovery Centre recognizes the need for culturally sensitive addiction treatment and offers a range of programs and services designed to meet the needs of individuals from diverse backgrounds. As Keith notes, "We understand that addiction affects people from all walks of life, and we are committed to providing personalized treatment that takes into account each individual's unique cultural and personal background."

Sunrise Recovery Centre encourages all employers to take a proactive approach to addressing alcohol addiction in the workplace and to seek out resources and support for their employees who may be struggling with addiction.
