

A Revolutionary Talent Scouting Platform Emerges: Where Fun Meets Opportunity

The Odd Pro combines its innovative job board with online networking, training and development opportunities for one low monthly price

Las Vegas, Nevada Jun 1, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Connecting with potential new employees is more challenging than ever, but a recently launched online service looks to make that process a bit easier.

"When we went to build The Odd Pro, when we knew a place to connect employers with talent was an important feature that would connect many of the other built-in services," said founder and CEO Emery M. McClendon, Esq.

As the first "Professional Cousin Service," he said those secondary connections made through fun and interactive events can be a far more powerful recruitment opportunity than a standard application process."

Networking is an essential part of finding a new job, but it can be challenging to make meaningful connections in a virtual environment, he said.

That's why job boards are turning to fun and interactive networking events to help job seekers connect with potential employers and peers.

"Our job board is designed to be engaging and allow job seekers to showcase their skills and personality," McClendon said. The events often include virtual games, breakout rooms, and other interactive activities to encourage attendees to get to know each other in a relaxed and fun environment."

"According to a recent survey, 85% of job seekers said they would be more likely to attend a virtual job board even if it was fun and interactive. In addition, 80% of respondents said they would be more likely to make meaningful connections at a virtual event with interactive elements."

Virtual networking events provide job seekers with the opportunity to connect with potential employers and peers in a more personal and meaningful way than traditional online job boards.

This can lead to better networking opportunities and more job offers. In addition to being more engaging, virtual networking events are often more accessible and cost-effective than in-person events. This means job seekers can attend events and connect with potential employers from anywhere in the world.

"Networking is a critical part of finding a new job, but it doesn't have to be boring or tedious," McClendon said. "Our job board is designed to be fun and interactive, providing job seekers with a unique opportunity to showcase their skills and personality to potential employers."

He said that virtual networking events can be a powerful tool for success, whether actively seeking a new job or simply looking to expand your network. By creating an environment that encourages interaction and connection, The Odd Pro job board can help job seekers make meaningful connections, leading to career growth and success.

"The Odd Pro is designed to empower individuals to take control of their personal and professional development," McClendon said. "We wanted to create a platform that provides users access to various resources to help them achieve their goals."

"Our platform aims to provide a one-stop shop for individuals seeking personal and professional growth. The Odd Pro offers various services, including access to licensed therapists for online therapy sessions, professional networking opportunities, and training courses in various fields. In addition, users can access exclusive discounts on products and services from various brands and companies."

The networking opportunities The Odd Pro provides allow users to connect with professionals in their field and expand their network. Users can attend virtual events and connect with other members through the platform.

And training offered by The Odd Pro covers various topics, including leadership, entrepreneurship, marketing, and personal development.

In addition to these services, The Odd Pro offers exclusive discounts on products and services from various brands and companies. Users can access deals from software and technology products to travel and lifestyle services.

"We wanted to build a platform where users can access everything they need to achieve their goals in one convenient online location," McClendon said. "With the recent launch, users are seeing that desire come to fruition, and we look forward to continuing to be their favorite 'cousin.'"
