

The highly anticipated third single by ThreeTimes, titled 'Over Myself', is scheduled to be released on June 30th waves with their latest indie pop/rock song. This month, they're back with a brand new track that has been causing a stir on social media platforms. In a recent interview, Tyler Tyszkiewicz, the singer/songwriter and producer, expressed his astonishment at the overwhelming demand for the song and the outpouring of love from their fans. He said, "It's quite surreal to witness the number of people requesting the release of this song and the incredible support we've been receiving. Personally, I believe this song represents a significant stride towards our artistic aspirations as a collective."

This marks the third song released by the dynamic duo known as ThreeTimes, following the success of their previous tracks, 'My Type' and 'Unbound'. Having honed their musical skills for over six years and experimented with various pseudonyms, the artists have consistently strived for excellence. Luke Gonzales, a member of ThreeTimes, revealed in an interview, "When we listen to our old and new songs, it's mind-boggling to witness the tremendous growth we've achieved in just a year. Our sound has evolved so much, and it's exhilarating."

Thanks to their relatable and heartfelt lyrics that touch upon the theme of manipulation within relationships, ThreeTimes has been gaining a substantial following. Luke Gonzales explained, "We drew inspiration for the song from encounters with people who pretend to care for you but deceive and manipulate you. I believe its relatability to various life experiences is the reason why people are connecting with this song."

With the impending release of their third single, ThreeTimes is poised to reach new heights of success. The anticipation surrounding the song is palpable, as fans eagerly await its official debut. The group's burgeoning popularity is a testament to their talent and unwavering dedication to their craft.

There is no sign of ThreeTimes slowing down. In fact, they have two new singles in the pipeline following the release of 'Over Myself'. Continually evolving as artists, 'Over Myself' represents yet another milestone in their artistic journey. Fans are eagerly anticipating what the future holds for this dynamic duo.

The highly anticipated third single by ThreeTimes, titled 'Over Myself', is scheduled to be released on June 30th. Stay tuned by following ThreeTimes on various social media platforms and streaming services, and be sure to pre-save their new single to be among the first to experience their captivating new song upon its release.
