THE HUMAN INJURY

— A SPECIES IN CRISIS —

ANTHONY A. WALL, JR.

King of Prussia, Pennsylvania Jul 25, 2023 (IssueWire.com) - Noësis Founder and President Anthony A. Wall, Jr., has achieved another milestone with his recently launched book, "The Human Injury: A Species in Crisis." The book has now become a bestseller, capturing the attention of readers worldwide.

The Human Injury is an exercise in counterintuitive thought. Wall beckons a faltering humanity to arrest its degradation, to quantify and embrace its reality, to survive itself. Wall goes right to work, exposing notable blind spots. An ample cache of modern philosophical thought lacks actionable methodology, reducing it to a quantifier of human lip service. As paralysis and escapism encroach, only actionable humans are capable of greatness.

The Human Injury is no buzz-phrase. A 275,000-year migratory journey for evolving humans was a smashing success. In a random crossover event, a creature born to run was induced to form stationary cultures. With the deadly precision of a radium clock, stationary cultures failed, not by choices humans made but by choices they no longer had. A broken humanity, once LIKE and EQUAL beings, arrives in the present day. People no longer recognize themselves.

The book fuses unblinking science together with twice the amount of empathy. The Human Condition begs for a redux, and Wall is up to the task. This is an unflinching tour of the human experience on Earth. The residue of ancient compulsions inside each individual can neither bargain nor think. They make the rules. The immensity of these forces must be quantified, as failure to do so may result in their overwhelming consumption.

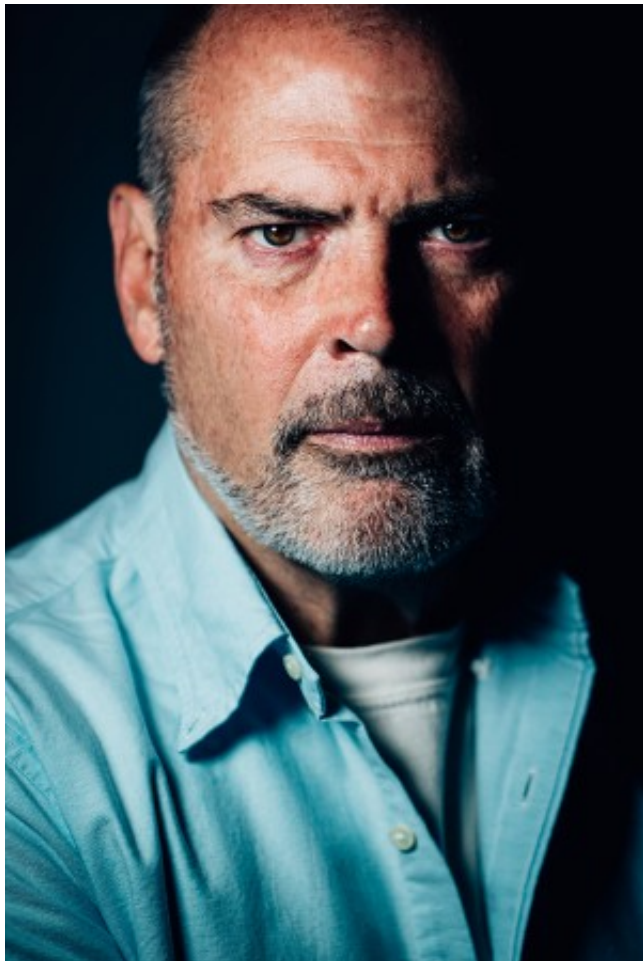

Wall credits the Liberal Arts for igniting his passion for philosophy. He graduated from Lake Forest College in Chicago. Wall uses a conversational style, heavy on macro-human observation, sprinkled with evolutionary levity. Human beings respond to leadership but will not sit still to be judged or diminished.

Noësis is a non-profit organization dedicated to issues of human sustainability. A series of educational videos explain how the residue of 100,000 prior generations of humans now combine to block the path to sustainability.
