Dubai is a vibrant city.

It is a hub of global trade and commerce, and its strategic location makes it an ideal destination for international business events. This September, Dubai will play host to The Economist's 3rd annual Global Trade and Supply Chain Summit, which promises to be a thought-provoking and insightful event for business leaders, policymakers, and industry professionals.

We are thrilled to announce that VMH Magazine has partnered with Economist Impact to provide media coverage of the 3rd annual Global Trade and Supply Chain Summit. Our team of journalists will be on the ground in Dubai to cover the summit, providing our readers with exclusive access to the latest insights and analysis from thought leaders in the trade and supply-chain ecosystem.

As a media partner, VMH Magazine will leverage its extensive reach to promote the summit to our global audience of business leaders, policymakers, and industry professionals. We will be providing coverage of the summit on our website, social media channels, and in our print and digital editions. Our readers will have access to exclusive interviews with summit speakers, expert analysis of key issues, and behind-the-scenes insights into the summit proceedings.

The theme of this year's summit is "How to transform trade to fuel growth and new globalization." The summit will explore the challenges and opportunities facing the global trade and supply-chain ecosystem, including the impact of geopolitical and economic turmoil on planning and forecasting, the role of technology in transforming supply chains, and the importance of sustainability and social responsibility in global trade.

"The summit is a unique opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of the challenges and opportunities facing the global trade and supply-chain ecosystem, and we look forward to bringing our readers exclusive coverage of this important event," said Vikki Jones, Editor-in-Chief of VMH Magazine.
