The Garden State rapper first break thru was his debut retail album “Prince of Jersey” 2.0. The album featured the Jersey Club record “Drop it Down” which was remixed by Newark, New Jersey’s DJ Lil Man. The remix “Drop it Down” (left - right) became a club trend in New Jersey and Miami earning over 1 million streams combined.

“People who know my music know me for bars and punchlines, New Jerz Anthem is a Jersey Club record but I still hit them with bars”. I need the fans to know where this sound was originated. The single dropped only a few weeks ago, Instagram and TIK TOK creators are showing love with dance challenges and TIK TOK reels. I’m Jersey all day says Bizz. I always connect with the fans if I come across a TIK TOK or Instagram reel with a creator vibing to my single I’ll repost it. It’s important to me to connect with fans who appreciate what I do”. Da Baby from North Carolina, Uzi from Philly - both dropped big Jersey Club records this year. I went back to the basics with this record to bring the sound back to its roots”.
