

FasterCapital Announces Launching its MVP Costs Estimation Services for Startups

Estimating the cost of building the product is one of the most common challenges that entrepreneurs face.

Dubai, United Arab Emirates Jul 2, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - FasterCapital announces its MVP Costs Estimation Services for startups. This service is part of FasterCapital's Tech Cofounder program. FasterCapital helps startups evaluate the cost of building their software product (app or website). FasterCapital works on defining the resources and tools that will be used for developing the product and analyzes the technical requirements first in order to evaluate the cost of building the startup's MVP.

This service is optimal for entrepreneurs who are starting a new tech startup and are looking for technical support to estimate how much their MVP is going to cost.

The service starts with preparing a software requirement analysis whereby the team at FasterCapital studies the app or website that needs to be built and all the features required and prepares a report based on that. The technical requirements usually include the features of the product and an overall description of the product.

Through FasterCapital's Tech Cofounder program, the team works on analyzing and refining the requirements needed for the product as well as providing the startup's team with insights about how to optimize the performance of the future app/website starting from such an early stage.

The service covers estimating the costs for Android and iOS apps as well as desktop products and websites.

After filling the online questionnaire, the entrepreneur received a report with an estimation of the costs for building their MVP in addition to technical and business advisory comments to help them create a more successful product.

The MVP Cost Estimation service is part of the various technical services FasterCapital is providing startups with through its Tech Cofounder program. Entrepreneurs can learn more about these programs on FasterCapital website.

Mr. Hesham Zreik, CEO of FasterCapital, commented, "This service aims at helping people who lack the required technical expertise or background in launching their own tech products from the very first steps."
