

Revolutionising Construction Sites: Innovative Hoarding Graphics and Scaffold Covers

Innovative Hoarding Graphics and Scaffold Covers

London, United Kingdom Jul 7, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - The Sign Company London, a leading player in the signage industry for over a decade, is revolutionising the way construction sites communicate with their surroundings. With their innovative hoarding graphics and scaffold covers, they are transforming mundane construction sites into interactive spaces that not only ensure safety but also serve as effective advertising platforms.

Hoarding Graphics - More Than Just a Safety Measure

Construction hoarding, a temporary fence erected around building sites, is a legal requirement under the Construction (Design and Management) Regulations -2015. But The Sign Company London sees it as more than just a safety measure. They view it as a fantastic opportunity for building owners and brands to advertise their projects and interact with the local community.

The company offers a variety of construction hoarding services, including design, printing, and installation. They use top-quality stock materials like aluminium Dibond, or Correx to ensure weatherproof and long-lasting prints. With options for customisation like lamination and lighting, they ensure that the hoardings not only serve their purpose but also stand out.

Scaffold Covers - Your Personal Billboard

Scaffold covers, used to conceal unsightly scaffolding rigs, are another area where our company is making a mark. They offer single-sided and double-sided banners, printed on hard-wearing mesh material for high durability. The use of UV lightfast ink ensures that the scaffold cover are resistant to fading and long-lasting.

These scaffold wraps can be used to showcase the project's final look or to convey essential information to potential customers. They can also be leased to third-party brands for promotion, thus generating additional revenue for the construction company.

The Power of Hoarding Graphics

The Sign Company London's hoarding graphics are not just about safety and regulations; they are about creating a powerful visual impact. The company understands that construction hoardings provide a significant amount of space facing the public eye. They assist businesses in utilising this space to their benefit, creating a lasting impact.

Building owners can use their services to highlight of their projects, while companies can rent hoardings to promote their products and services and generate leads. The company also recognises the potential of hoarding signage for community engagement. By creating designs that entertain and inform the locals about the area's history, they help businesses improve their standing in the community and boost their business more organically.

The Versatility of Scaffold Covers

Scaffold covers, or scaffold wraps as they are sometimes called, are another innovative solution offered by our company. These wraps can serve as a personal billboard for construction companies, showcasing how the project will look upon completion or conveying essential information to potential customers.

The company offers scaffold covers in various types depending on the application, including single-sided banners, double-sided banners, and even fire-resistant banners. They can be customised to bespoke sizes and shapes, ensuring that they meet the unique requirements of each project.

The Sign Company London - A Commitment to Quality

Our commitment to quality is evident in every aspect of their work. They have been printing and installing hoarding signage for a long time, and this experience has made it possible them to provide print and service quality that is superior.

They print their scaffold covers with cutting-edge technology, resulting in fine details and vibrant colours.

This ensures that their banners will leave a lasting impression in the minds of potential customers.
