About the author

Naima Mohammedi is a Tanzania-American author and passionate advocate for literacy and children's education. She holds a degree in Radio, Television, and Film from Texas Southern University, where she developed her storytelling skills and discovered her love for writing. Naima is committed to fostering a lifelong love of reading in children and believes that books have the power to shape young minds and ignite imaginations. As a co-founder of the NGO Amani Read to Lead, Naima actively works towards promoting literacy and the joy of reading among children. Through various initiatives, including book access programs and engaging reading events, she aims to inspire young readers and empower them to embrace the world of books. Naima's writing is driven by a desire to entertain, educate, and inspire young minds. She creates captivating stories that transport readers to magical worlds, encouraging them to explore, learn, and embrace their unique qualities. With each book, Naima hopes to instill valuable life lessons, foster friendships, and spark curiosity about the wonders of the natural world.

Currently residing in Redmond, Washington, Naima continues to make a positive impact in the lives of children through her captivating children's books. Her dedication to promoting literacy and her belief in the transformative power of reading shine through her engaging narratives and vibrant illustrations.
