

What are the infant travel requirements for Delta?

If you have any doubts about the Delta Airlines Infant Policy, you can reach out to us at FlyoStudio or call customer support at +1-844-414-9223 any time of the day, as we are available for your assistance 24 hours a day.

Fresno, California Jul 25, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Flying with infants can be a rewarding yet challenging experience, and Delta Airlines aims to ensure a comfortable journey for both parents and their little ones. From priority boarding and spacious seating options to complimentary infant essentials and attentive cabin crew, parents can rest assured that their precious cargo is in good hands. This log by FlyoStudio explores the same details.

What is the Delta Airlines infant policy?

The Delta Airlines infant policy states:

- Infants under the age of 2 years are considered lap infants and are not required to have their own seat. However, parents can choose to purchase a seat for their infant and use an FAA-approved child restraint system.
- Lap infants travel for free on domestic flights within the United States, but international flights might have an infant fare, which is usually a percentage of the adult fare.
- Parents can bring an additional diaper bag and other essentials for the infant.
- Delta allows parents to check strollers and car seats for free. Additionally, parents can use an FAA-approved car seat on the plane if they purchase a separate seat for the infant.
- Delta provides complimentary infant food and amenities, including diapers and baby wipes, on most flights.

Do babies need a birth certificate to fly Delta?

Delta Airlines does not require infants traveling as lap children (under 2 years old) to present a birth certificate for domestic flights within the United States. However, it's important to note that all passengers, regardless of age, are required to have valid identification for international travel, which typically includes a passport.

While a birth certificate might not be necessary for domestic flights, it's always a good idea to carry some form of identification for your child, such as a copy of their birth certificate or health insurance card, as airlines may request it for verification or in case of any unforeseen circumstances.

What are the charges involved with flying with infants on Delta flights?

The charges involved with flying with infants on Delta flights for domestic flights within the United States, infants under the age of 2 years could travel as lap children without their own seat without an additional charge. For more details, you can reach out to FlyoStudio +1-844-414-9223 which is available for you 24*7.

Media Contact

Flyostudio

kilysen554@gmail.com

Source : Flyostudio

See on IssueWire