Nagercoil, Tamil Nadu Sep 1, 2023 (Issuewire.com) - Under the visionary leadership of Renisha Winston, Managing Director of Imanager Publications, and Deena Das, Director of Dale View College of Pharmacy and Research Centre, this partnership is set to significantly impact the advancement of clinical pharmacology and pharmacotherapeutics.

The "Journal of Clinical Pharmacology and Pharmacotherapeutics" seeks to bridge the gap between academia and industry by publishing high-quality research that addresses the latest developments, challenges, and advancements in the field. This interdisciplinary journal will serve as a valuable resource for researchers, practitioners, and policymakers, offering insights that can shape the future of healthcare and pharmaceutical practice.

Renisha Winston, Managing Director of Imanager Publications, expressed her enthusiasm about the collaboration: "We are delighted to join forces with Dale View College of Pharmacy and Research Centre to bring forth this groundbreaking journal. Through this platform, we aim to provide researchers and professionals with a space to exchange ideas, collaborate on innovative research, and contribute to the growth of clinical pharmacology."

Deena Das, Director of Dale View College of Pharmacy and Research Centre, shared her thoughts on the partnership: "The 'Journal of Clinical Pharmacology and Pharmacotherapeutics' represents our commitment to fostering research excellence and driving positive changes in healthcare. We are excited to work alongside Imanager Publications to create a space that encourages in-depth exploration of pharmacological interventions and their impact on patient care."

The inaugural issue of the "Journal of Clinical Pharmacology and Pharmacotherapeutics" is scheduled for release in September. Researchers, clinicians, and educators are invited to submit their original research articles, reviews, and commentaries to contribute to this collaborative endeavour.
