Bliss Kennels has been at the forefront of doodle variant breeding for over 12 years. Recognizing that life's unforeseen events can sometimes upend the best-laid plans, the facility offers extended care, ensuring proper care of puppies even if families need more time beyond the scheduled "Go Home" date.

"Every puppy is part of the Bliss Kennels family, and we take immense pride in ensuring they receive the individual care and love they deserve. We understand that sometimes families need a bit more time, and our new service ensures these puppies have a home filled with care until their families are ready," the firm's rep stated.

The first three days after the "Go Home" date will see puppies cared for at no extra charge, a gesture underscoring Bliss Kennels' understanding of potential scheduling challenges families might face. If families require a longer duration, a nominal fee of $15/day ensures their puppies continue to experience the best care in the expansive environment of Bliss Kennels' historic family farm.

"Over the past years, our farm has birthed and cared for uncountable animals, from cows to cats and everything in between. This rich legacy of animal care is embedded in every square inch of our farm, and we want our families to know their puppies are in the most nurturing hands during their extended stay with us," added the rep.
