Following her EP release, Stephanie encountered a challenging season battling health issues, a journey that brought her to a sudden standstill while trying to find answers to unexplainable neuropathy issues. During her journey towards healing and better health, Stephanie found her daily walk with God deepened more than ever before. Time on her face before Jesus became an even more vital part of her daily life and God started opening doors, one after another, providing direction, opportunities, and dreams. "Confidence" was one of many miracles that came out of this season although the lyrics had been established a couple of years prior. It is a powerful and anointed song that speaks a message of hope and prayerful declaration to the listener, particularly elevating the eyes of listeners going through various valleys to Jesus. The catchy and vibrant bridge declares that even if it doesn't turn out like we think it should, He's still good. The confidence to stay firm in the hope and belief that what He says is true, regardless of the situation, is the heartbeat of this moving and inspiring song.

Working together with her producer, the amazing Sam Hart, was an incredible and refreshing experience and has set the stage for many more amazing projects to come. Sam was one of the co-writers of Confidence alongside Keri Aycock and Jessica Burch. Well-known musicians, including Austin Davis, known for touring with Kari Jobe, contributed to the amazing feel of this song.
