She and her team have special training to help both children and their parents understand how to care for teeth and support oral health.

They offer much-needed help and guidance, including a fun and supportive atmosphere where children can learn the importance of oral health; dietary advice for parents and kids to better guide families in healthy ways to eat for the best smile; collaboration with pediatricians and orthodontists to provide full care; giving children choices and helping them feel in charge of surroundings; and activities and rewards to make the dental office a place that is fun.

A long-term Oregon native, Dr. Pelley received a Bachelor's Degree in Arts and Science with a focus on Biology from Portland State University. After graduation, she was awarded membership in the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi for academic excellence.

Advanced training as a pedodontist balances her passion for the care of children with the science and artistry of dentistry. Dr. Pelley began her care for the health of babies, children, and adolescents through 12 years of nursing, including working in the pediatric ICU. This early training gave her the unique ability to see how the child's whole body influences overall oral health.
